THE SOUTHLAND.

Work of the Negro and His Needs Told by A Woman of the Race Yesterday at the Baptist Church.

Mrs. William Scott, one of the most eloquent of negro women, spoke Sunday morning in the First Baptist church, in the interest of the Home Mission society, which is doing so much to elevate her race.

Mrs. Scott is one of the most powerful speakers of her sex upon the platform at the present time, and her appeal, straightforward and concise, was nothing if not eloquent.

In opening, she said that the negro race had been brought here by our forefathers, and it was now our duty to educate and evangelize it.

Mrs. Scott recited an experience in her home in Missouri, when her mother's husband was taken away, so pathetic that it brought many to tears.

on common. In the Civil war, 200,000 went into the midst of the fray, one quarter laying down their lives for the cause.

The negro is commendable because he has proved his worthiness of citizenship. No man in the country today is so discriminated against as the negro.
